PROCEDURE

The seminar will combine Moodle forum with class sessions.

To make the discussion of the texts more streamlined, students will be divided into groups, each group focusing closely on a given section/aspect of the text. Members of the group will take turns introducing the respective passage to their colleagues through a brief interpretative reading "opening" the text. There will also be questions for discussion posted in the forum, which the members of the group should address (briefly!). The forum should thus provide all students with a basic idea of the text and its problems. The class session will expand on this, allowing all participants to interrogate, compare and combine their individual insights and conclusions.

Further details will be discussed during the first introductory session. Please watch for updated information in the course account on Moodle.

Oral presentations should be accompanied by a handout/presentation summarizing the most important points. The talk should not exceed 10 minutes.

ASSESSMENT

Single subject students obtain a credit (zápočet) passing the test following the LECTURE and fulfilling the requirements for the SEMINAR: active participation, one presentation, final essay of min. 1000 words. The final grade (zkouška) will be determined on the basis of the aggregate performance in all the above, i.e. participation, presentation, test, essay. The relative weight of individual components is:

essay: 37%, test: 33%, presentation: 15%, participation: 15%.

Essay subject to 1 rewriting, test subject to two re-sits.

Students must complete all the credit requirements BY THE END OF THE YEAR FOLLOWING THAT IN WHICH THEY REGISTERED FOR THE COURSE in keeping with the rules set for zkouška (i.e. by September 2023).

Additional essay deadlines

- for students planning to take the finals in June: 17 May 2022
- for students planning to take the finals in September: 30 June 2022
- for students who need the credits to register for the next academic year: 5 September 2022
