

Dear students,

you can read information about the test from the Propedeutics of Internal Medicine.

The test will take 25 minutes and will comprise 40 questions, each with 4 choices of which one is correct.

The questions will be related to the content of the lectures. To pass the test, you should answer 60 % correctly.

We recommend to take a sheet of paper and a pen (there is a possibility of a simple calculation question).

The students will have two attempts.

This exam will be obligatory for the credit for those students who have failed the test twice.

The students will have to briefly answer two questions.

The questions will relate to the following topics (corresponding with the lectures in the summer semester):

- Examination of patient's general condition
- Examination of head and neck
- Examination of the heart
- Examination of the lungs
- Examination of the abdomen
- Examination of arteries and veins
- Examination of the joints
- The basics of ECG
- Basic laboratory tests in internal medicine

The exam will take place in the 2nd Department of Internal Medicine (2nd floor, the library), on September.

Jana Hirmerová, MD, Ph.D, assoc. Prof.

Deputy Head, 2nd Department of Internal Medicine